Wayne Huizenga

Self-made businessman and entrepreneur,
billionaire, owner and founder of:
Blockbuster Video
Waste Management Inc
AutoNation
and many more.

I have worked with and for businesses for more than 30 years as a finance professional, in privately held and ASX listed companies, with experience across many and varied sectors.

Through my work, I have seen and also experienced first hand, the stress business owners and executives are under, and the toll this takes not only on their lives, but also on the lives of their families.

After my own personal transformation journey and extensive retraining, I now works with CEOs, Business Owners, Executives and Leaders to assist them to change their thinking and behaviour, to maximise their results and achieve their potential.

This in turn directly impacts the bottom line of businesses, improving their financial results and accelerating business growth, while creating great outcomes for the executives personally.

When we are seeking our own professional growth, we often find ourselves without the personal skills needed to achieve our goals. I deeply believe that in order to grow professionally, we must grow personally first.

Self-leadership is the key to your success. This applies to us all - whether you are a business owner, executive, leader, or anyone wanting to challenge themselves and change their lives.
